Potential Problems in a School

How might social work values be applied to addressing various challenges in a school

- Students are experiencing stress, anxiety, or depression and need emotional support within the school environment
- Some students are often absent or disengaged from classes, and staff are unsure how to re-engage them
- There are concerns that the school's discipline policies affect some groups of students more harshly than others
- The school community faces funding cuts, leading to reduced access to meals, materials, and after-school programs
- Families who feel disconnected from school staff or are uncertain about how to access support for their children
